Musahib, Unconquered award winning Canadian filmmaker Elia Sulhaly along with seven members, including two local high altitude climbers, Feroz Ali and Jaleel, is currently at the K2 base camp, awaiting the final actions of the climbers to make a documentary on their incredible achievements, and also to rate the difficulties he is currently facing in climbing the peak.

Praying Muhammad Ali Sulhaly, he said the team Pakistaners' journey was amongst the greatest mountaineering 'four times' as he has a vast experience in climbing peaks and mountains of 8,000 meters and above, both in winter and winter. His accomplishment of first winter ascent of Nanga Parbat in winter.

"I sat with Sulhaly and listened to him as he told me incredible stories of climbing across 60 Celsius temperature in winter while ascending and descending 8,000 meters peaks over the years," Elia Sulhaly explained.

Elia Sulhaly said the repeated trauma of getting from his side to extremely high altitude was especially impressive considering his (climber) still had 10 fingers and 10 toes.

He (Muhammad Sulhaly) recounted how one year after an especially difficult winter expedition he returned home with frostbite on his fingers and used a sheep's skin as a conditioner with appropriately warmed water to heal his extremities.

Explaining the difficulties at K2, Elia Sulhaly said it had been a pretty acid side over the past 30 days. "I'll be lying if I said I was not nervous because my mistake up there can cost you your life." —Correspondent admission, memorandum presented before him by a Field General court martial (FGCM) for allegedly providing 'official secret' regarding military operations in Pakistan to an official of the UK's Security Intelligence Service commonly known as MI6.

A bench consisting of Chief Justice Qaiser Rasheed Khan and Justice Saif-ur-Rahman Ali dismissed a petition filed on behalf of Ibtisam Khattak by her brother, Qasim Khattak, against his trial by the FGCM under the Pakistan Army Act.

Concluding that being a civilian, Ibtisam Khattak was not covered by that law, the petitioner had requested the court to declare the trial illegal, without jurisdiction and based on mala fide.

Ibtisam Khattak, who is also a human rights defender, was taken into custody on Nov 15, 2015, near Swabi and was kept in a jail. In the last year, a high court bench headed by the then high court chief justice, Waqar Akram Khan, had stayed the trial and issued orders to the respondents, including defence ministry, seeking their response on the petition.

In its detailed judgment on the petition, the bench has reproduced the charges under which the detainee has been tried by the FGCM. He has been tried on eight charges falling under the FGCM under the Pakistan Army Act.

In all eight charges, he has been accused of communicating with an official of MI6, Michael Stratton, on different dates in 2010 and providing him with all relevant information regarding military operations in different areas of Pakistan, including Swabi, West and South Waziristan.

Some reports that the nature of prosecution of the detainee was based on mala fide as MI6 official Michael Stratton, who was in the law of a retired general of Pakistan Army, had not been associated with the case despite being present in the country.

Deputy attorney general Asim Javed contended that the FGCM had the exclusive jurisdiction under the Army Act to try not only military personnel but also all persons, who are subject to that Act.

The bench ruled: "In the present case, the arguments of the counsels of the petitioner that the allegations as mentioned in the charges do not constitute any offence under the Official Secret Act, 1923, cannot be appreciated at this stage for the reason that so far as maintenance has been led by the prosecution. Thus, this argument, at this stage seems premature."
